Reflection on 32nd Sunday in Ordinary Time

Let us not take things for granted, "Therefore, stay awake, for you know neither the day nor the hour." (Mt. 24:44)

"Good Christians who live in a worldly culture must be prudent to improve their situation, they have to give great care to the needs of their responsibilities. Yet, good Christians also trust in God's wisdom more than in their own proficiency. The work faithfully, but let God take concern for their work. The things they do are insignificant when they consider only the dignity of their work has in being willed by God's will, arranged by Providence, and planned according to His wisdom. God's wisdom is God's love for us."
~St. Francis de Sales

What's New :

This space will be section for a review of our Catholic Faith, so we can continue to grow in our Faith and be faithful disciples of our Lord Jesus Christ. To be a Christian is to embrace and live the truth revealed by God in Jesus Christ. This Truth is handed on securely in the Tradition and Scripture of the Catholic Church.

We will live in a new century. The Catholic Church is in the third millennium and is both different from the Catholic Church of the twentieth century, but at the same time; yet the SAME Catholic Church in her essence. She is still our Holy Mother, the Church. In the midst of renewals, we look to the unchanging things that we believe and the developing ways in which we can express those beliefs.
